Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.

After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.

An organization uses an Active Directory Rights Management Services (AD RMS) cluster named RMS1 to protect content for a project. You uninstall AD RMS when the project is complete. You need to ensure that the protected content is still available after AD RMS is uninstalled.

Solution: You enable the decommissioning service by using the AD RMS management console. You grant all users the Read & Execute permission to the decommission pipeline.

Does this meet the goal?

A. Yes

B. No

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

The proper procedure is:

Inform your users that you are decommissioning the AD RMS installation and advise them to connect to the cluster to save their content without AD RMS protection. Alternatively, you could delegate a trusted person to decrypt all rights-protected content by temporarily adding that person to the AD RMS super users group.

After you believe that all of the content is unprotected and saved, you should export the server licenser certificate, and then uninstall AD RMS from the server.

NEW QUESTION: 2

All corporate-issued devices in your network have been configured with EAP-TLS authentication. They authenticate via wireless to an instance of Cisco ISE and AD authorization for the user profiles is un-configured. Which impact occurs to the authentication when a user's Active Directory username and password expires?

- A. WLAN connectivity is not impacted because EAP-TLS uses certificates.
- B. The WLAN profile must be forgotten and reconfigured.
- C. The ISE prompts the user for the new password.
- D. The user must change the password manually on their WLAN profile.
