NEW QUESTION: 1

Your company has computers in multiple locations that use IPv4 and IPv6. Each location is protected by a firewall that performs symmetric NAT.

You need to allow peer-to-peer communication between all locations.

What should you do?

A. Configure a global IPv6 address for the external interface of the firewall.

B. Configure a link local IPv6 address for the internal interface of the firewall.

C. Configure the firewall to allow the use of Teredo.

D. Configure dynamic NAT on the firewall.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Since some locations use IPv4 and IPv6, they will not be able to talk to each other without Teredo tunneling at the firewall. Teredo is a transition technology that gives full IPv6 connectivity for IPv6-capable hosts which are on the IPv4 Internet but which have no direct native connection to an IPv6 network. Reference: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Teredo_tunneling

NAT simply masks source traffic; changing from symmetric to dynamic will not change the fact that some IPv6 connections are trying to communicate with IPv4 networks.

An IPv6 global address is essentially a public address for the internet. This would be needed for internet communications for all networks, but will not allow peer-to-peer communication.

Reference:

An IPv6 link-local address is intended for communications with a local subnet; we need peer-to-peer communications.
